

NEWS EVENTS OF THE DAY SEEN THROUGH THE EYE OF THE CAMERA

Charles Vickrey, general secretary of Near East Relief Organization, paints vivid picture of conditions in Asia Minor and need of instant aid to prevent a stupendous loss of life, which will stagger the world.

Fashion, ever looking for new fields in which to show her skill, now concentrates on the negligee and breakfast coat. Here are two coats which are not too elaborate for even the practical minded woman. One is a lace coat worn with a silk slip and it is perhaps one of the most favored models. The other is made of chiffon in a soft orchid shade with deep ruffles giving the feminine touch. A lace bandeau is worn with the lace coat while the other lace cap which boasts a chin strap speaks of Dutch origin. Neither is as intimate as the usual boudoir gown.

Sir Harry Lauder, famous comedian from the Land o' the Heather, is with us again. This time he has his twelve inch pipe going stronger than ever. Kings may come and kings may go, but the genial Scot goes on forever.

Miss Miriam Burns.

Miss Miriam Burns, Kansas City, had little difficulty winning the Missouri state women's title and, according to the gallery, could win a beauty prize just as easily.

Mr. Mary Nauman, Brooklyn, has been joined by her whole family in her efforts to regain custody of her daughter, Nellie Barnett, who was adopted by Mrs. William Cahill of Chicago some years ago while Mary Nauman was in poor circumstances. She's wealthy now.

Georges Carpentier "making up" for part in his latest movie just before his bout with Battling Siki.

Many French critics are saying that Georges Carpentier's crushing defeat at the black hands of Battling Siki can be laid to his new love, the aviator. They assert he spent more time training before the make-up table of the movie studio than he did in the boxing ring at his quarters. Georges seems to be worrying more about his curly locks than he does about Siki's fists in this photo.

Greeks aboard transport at Smyrna. Note the straggler climbing the hawser to the deck.

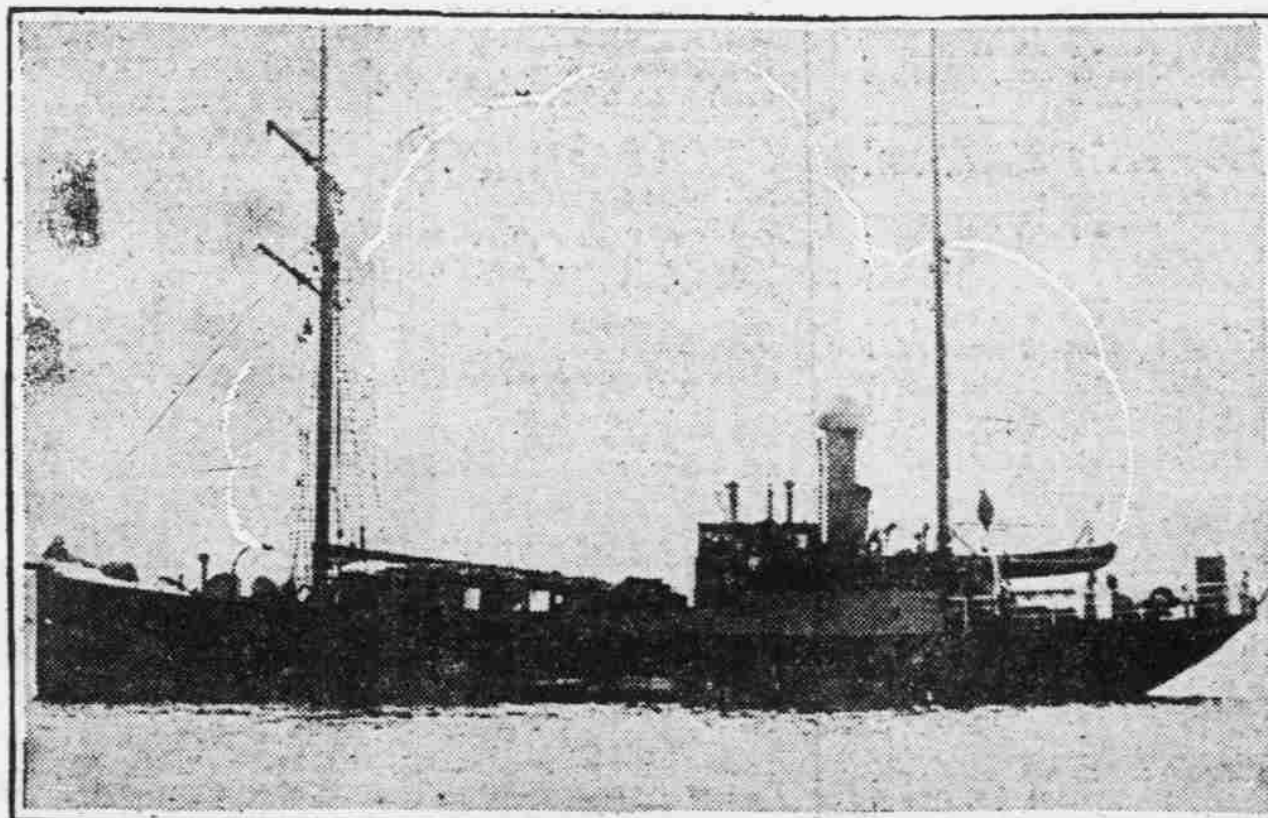

Greek troops who were rushed from Smyrna on transports at the approach of the Turks now are being massed in Thrace to repel the threatened invasion of Mustapha Kemal Pasha. The Greeks will have the support of the heavy guns of the British fleet in case the Turks attempt to cross the Dardanelles. So far both Turks and British have confined their "war" to words.

What's wrong with this picture, eh? Why, Uncle Joe Cannon's big black cigar is missing. Uncle Joe has just bought a new car and he drives around Washington as his own chauffeur. He finds it lots of fun, with only one drawback. He has to keep both hands on the wheel and so finds it impossible to burn up any stogies.

The 30,000 watt incandescent lamp made by the General Electric Company. It is 1,200 times larger than the average household lamp and will be used in a movie studio. It costs $3 an hour to use it.

The late Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition ship "The Quest," on which the great explorer died at South Georgia in 1922, is seen here. The little vessel experienced great ill-luck from the start, but it is stated that satisfactory scientific research has been carried out.

Joe Kirkwood, the Australian "trick golfer," is a wizard with the golf stick as Peters is with the billiard cue. Kirkwood, who is at present on a tour of this country, is in a class by himself when it comes to making "trick" shots.

The diagram shows three of Kirkwood's amazing shots, as he has been exhibiting them to the astonished spectators at the various golf clubs in this country.

No. 1—With three balls teed together he drives the center ball with a brassie without touching the others.

No. 2—This is a triple stymie. With four balls placed in front of the cup he hops one ball after the other over the others and into the cup with a mashie.

No. 3—Drives a golf ball off the face of a watch without injuring the crystal.
